Love - the hub of Christian faith

By Gospel

Aubrey Johnson has added to his outstanding lineup of books - The Barnabas Factor, Renewing Your Spiritual Life and Spiritual Patriots - with his most recent release of Love More, Sin Less. Johnson's emphasis in his newest book is on developing a God-shaped heart by presenting the biblical concept of love as the "hub around which everything revolves in the Christian faith." In a masterful way, he accomplishes the aim of the book, which is "to help you examine the connection between love and other foundational components of Christianity and, thereby, to unleash the gospel's power to produce an astounding and enduring change in your life."

The book's six sections are divided into 13 chapters so that it is ideal for one quarter of a year's Bible classes either on Sunday mornings or Wednesday evenings. Each chapter underscores the thesis of the book as stated by the author: "The key to building a great life (and a great church) is a great commitment to the Great Commandment."

Johnson begins by showing that love is at the center of the gospel and is subverted by sin in our lives. He continues by demonstrating that love is inseparably joined to faith, salvation, sanctification, fellowship, evangelism, hope and unity. Along the way, the author shows how love helps us deal with sin, unbelief and temptation and how love leads to repentance in the life of the believer.

Each chapter is followed by study questions and a survey designed to help the student monitor his growth in the life of love. Much of the survey information is appropriate for generating discussion in a class setting and can contribute greatly to helping the reader live out the truths presented in each chapter.

At the end of the book, Johnson presents a short treatise on "The Mystery of Sin" that in itself is worth the purchase price. From the foreword to the afterword, Love More, Sin Less is captivating and helpful reading for the Christian who is struggling to overcome sin as he pursues a life of love.

Great for Ladies Classes

By Natalie

We used this book for a recent ladies Bible class study. The author discusses how we should focus on loving more, instead of focusing on trying not to sin. The more we love (God, ourselves, each other), the less we will sin. I learned a lot from the book, and it led to a great Bible study.

great life application

By James Dennis

I have read several of Mr. Johnson books and everyone of them provided a clear life application of the scriptures. This book shows a different level of love. To truly love is to sin less. This eye opener showed me where I thought love was applied really was not. This book has help me in my Christian walk and talk and now I am more conscience for the love I have for others. Thanks Aubrey! Great job!!!!
